DRILLING PERMIT MANDAMUS REFUSED

EFFORTS TO DRILL SABINE RIVER BED PRIVATELY FAILURE

SUPREME COURT RULES NOT IN HANDS OF LAND COMMISSIONER

AUSTIN, April 21.—(P)—The Texas supreme court today refused to issue writs of mandamus to compel J. H. Walker, land commissioner, to issue a permit to prospect the Sabine river bed in the East Texas oil field.

Harry F. Dolan of Georgetown had applied for a writ of mandamus to compel Walker to issue him a lease on the valuable oil land in the heart of the prolific East Texas field.

F. B. Jackson of Wichita Falls sought a mandamus to require Walker to grant him a permit to prospect the area for oil and gas.

In refusing to grant either of the writs of mandamus, the supreme court, in effect, took the leasing of the Sabine river bed from the hands of Walker and placed it under supervision of the state board for mineral development, created by an act of the second called session of the 42nd legislature.

The bill to lease the land and create the board was the center of a bitter fight between Governor R. S. Sterling and members of the East Texas delegation in the legislature. Sterling ardently advocated development of the land as an economic measure and to prevent drainage of the state river bed by adjoining leases and the East Texans contending drilling in the river bed would endanger the water supply of cities along the Sabine.

Session Extended.

The controversy over the passage of the bill caused an extension of the second called session after a filibuster by Senator Margie Neal holding the floor until late in the night. The session was extended when Governor Sterling threatened to convoke the legislature.

DAWES PRESENTED PLEA AGAINST FULL PAYMENT OF BONUS

DEMAGOGUERY CONDEMNED IN CHARACTERISTIC WAY BY NOTED FIGURE

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—In characteristic and careful denials, Charles G. Dawes, congressman, today before the house ways and means committee to present a powerful plea against full payment of the bonus.

He called Wall Street "a pestilence" and the British budget "a stress" was laid upon its activities while the mass of the people were becoming more optimistic.

Withdrawals from banks have ceased, Dawes said, in outlining the operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which he heads.

He warned that inflation of the currency would have a disastrous effect upon the nation's monetary and credit system. The two billion dollar bonus would be paid in new currency under the Patman bill which he opposed.

NATIONS OWING WAR DEBTS TO UNITED STATES NOTIFIED PUT MATTER IN LEGAL FORM

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Formal requests have gone to the nations which benefited by the one-year moratorium expiring next June to place in legal form their agreements to pay the United States their postponed war debt installments over a 10-year period.

This new element in the debt situation, disclosed yesterday, stirred considerable interest because of its coincidence with renewed clamor over cancellation or revision of the President Hoover's proposal that the war debt funding commission be revived was a factor in the long delay was a matter in speculation.

Congress put a quietus on that night after the suggestion was advanced and at every opportunity leading members have reassured the nation that they are not anything that bordered on cancellation moves by this country. There has been every indication that the administration accepted the last year's unpaid balances with no intention of going any further.

In some quarters the suggestion was advanced that the state department was pressing the question now to prevent any attempt by European debtor nations to merge last year's unpaid balances with possible default on payments coming due after the moratorium expires and before they get to liquidate in the forthcoming Lausanne conference which is to take up the question of Germany's inability to pay reparations.

However, the step was necessary to complete the moratorium transition. The agreements entered into last summer, while binding, were merely initiated by ambassadors and ministers of the various nations.

Outwardly, the administration is giving no sign of any expectation that payments might be defaulted.

LEADERS OF THREE GREAT NATIONS IN PRIVATE CONFERENCE

STIMSON, MACDONALD AND TARDIEU HOLD MEETING AT GENEVA THURSDAY

GENEVA, April 21.—(P)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Andre Tardieu of France met with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson today in a private conference at Stimson's villa shortly after the arrival of the two premiers from Paris on a morning train.

Immediately after the British and French premiers arrived a bustle of preparation began for the conference of the officials.

None of the first magnitude statesmen were present when the disarmament conference resumed its debate on the resolution for "qualitative" disarmament presented yesterday by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

Sir George Perley, Canadian delegate, supported the Simon resolution warmly, declaring that the abolition of offensive weapons would increase confidence throughout the world, which would be the best guarantee of peace.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, had announced France would be unable to accept Sir John Simon's proposal in its present form.

RAIL VALUATION FIXED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—The interstate commerce commission today fixed the final valuation of the Galveston, Houston and Henderson railroad at $3,565,000 as of July 30, 1918. The road operates between Houston and Galveston, Texas.

Mother Drowns Three Children Early Thursday

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 21.—(P)—Mrs. Etta Butts, 39, wife of Carl Butts, who lives southwest of here, early today drowned three of her four children in a cistern and then attempted to take her own life.

The dead are Betty Jane, 4; Ross, 7; and May, 9.

Mrs. Butts was found by her husband and son Jack, 12, in the cistern and was rescued. Her condition was said to be serious. Authorities said she apparently was mentally deranged.

VETERANS' BUREAU HEAD FAVORED NEW LAWS FOR VETERANS

SAID NO REASON FOR MAN IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE RECEIVE TWO SALARIES

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, told the house military committee today he favored repeal of many provisions of the existing veterans' laws and the establishment of a new national policy based on need, disability and service.

Testifying on the Blanton bill to repeal the emergency officers' disability retirement act, Hines said he saw no reason for a man in government service to "receive two salaries."

He said he had recommended to the house special economy committee amendments to the laws to carry this suggestion into effect.

The veterans' administrator also said he favored no disability pay to those outside government service if they are earning $2,900 and have dependents, they should receive nothing from the government if they are getting $1,500 and if married with no dependents $2,500.

"I know," he said, "these suggestions will make me very unpopular with the veterans. But I feel that we should establish a principle. It will do more good in the long run than laxness."

King Winter Took Last Fling At West Today

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—(P)—King Winter left blizzards, snow, cold rains, high winds and badly interrupted shipping and air schedules in various sections of the west today.

The brunt of the storm apparently struck southern California coastal areas. Several fishing boats were destroyed when driven ashore by a wind that reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour. No lives were lost.

HONOLULU HONOR SLAYING TRIAL IN ITS FINAL STAGES

MRS. MASSIE, PRETTY VICTIM OF FIVE MEN, DE- FENSE'S LAST WITNESS

HONOLULU, April 21.—(P)—Delay until Saturday of the trial of four persons accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai was ordered by Judge Charles S. Davis today in order to give a prosecution alienist time to examine the mental condition of Mrs. Massie, who admitted responsibility for the killing.

By WILLIAM H. EWING.

HONOLULU, April 21.—(P)—Having been turned momentarily into a spectacle of wrath by the witness stand outburst of Mrs. Thalia Massie, the trial of four persons accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai reached the beginning of its epilogue today.

The white spark of fury which flashed first from the witness and then in turn from judge and prosecutor yesterday not only realized the end of Mrs. Massie's tear-drenched story but also marked the finish of defense testimony designed to clear her husband and three other persons of a second degree murder charge.

A paper, supposedly containing a written admission by Mrs. Massie of a rift between herself and her husband, provided the fuel for the mental conflagration.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Massie had admitted having taken a psychopathic examination at

PROGRESS MADE IN FORMULATING BILL TO CUT EXPENSES

COMMITTEE STRIKES SOME OF HOOVER'S PLANS FROM MEASURE

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Progress was made today by the house economy committee toward formulating a federal retrenchment bill while criticism of a proposed cut in government salaries was made in the senate.

The house committee struck from President Hoover's retrenchment program the proposal to suspend operation of ship lines by the shipping board Jan. 1, 1933.

It also tentatively decided against suspending federal contributions to vocational education during 1933 but agreed to propose a plan for that action thereafter.

Meanwhile Senator Ashurst (D., Ariz.) predicted in the senate that if the salaries of government employees are reduced "every industry in the United States will do likewise."

Chairman McDuffie said the economy group was working out plans to eliminate many bureaus in the shipping board that would save about $2,500,000 a year.

The committee failed at its morning session to reach a decision on whether to give President Hoover authority to reorganize some activities of the government.

LINDBERGH WORKS BEHIND SCREEN OF SECRECY EACH DAY

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN KIDNAPING CASE APPEAR- ED THURSDAY

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 21.—(P)—The 51st day of the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery today saw Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, his emissaries and the police still working behind a screen of secrecy from which there came no indication that the return of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., is any nearer.

Developments were scanty. Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafie" who made the futile $50,000 ransom payment, today said he had no new information.

NINETY-SIX YEARS AGO WAS TURNING POINT IN HISTORY STATE TEXAS

Ninety-six years ago today was the turning point in the history of Texas. The Lone Star state, and possessor of one of the richest heritages from its pioneer citizens of any section of the world, old or new, as General Sam Houston with a small army attacked and conquered the Mexican forces under General Santa Anna on the historic San Jacinto battleground near Houston on April 21, 1836.

Inspired by their intense hatred of the Mexican general and his army for their atrocious massacres of the Alamo and Goliad, the Texans numbered less than half the strength of their opponents caught the Mexican foe at siesta time and routed them completely. The Mexican losses were six hundred or more dead, and seven hundred and thirty prisoners, a third of whom were wounded. On the following day the Mexican general was captured and shortly afterward after a conference with President Burnet signed the Treaty of Velasco which terminated the state of war between Texas and Mexico and marked the virtual end of conflict between the countries, although Mexico threatened for several years to make trouble.

The battle of San Jacinto was the culmination of the active struggle started on March 2 when the citizens of Texas met at Washington-on-the-Brazos and declared their independence from Mexico.

The famous battle ground near Houston is preserved as a state park and suitable monuments have been erected on the site. Hundreds of Texans and visitors from all parts of the nation visit the hallowed spot each year.

Observance of San Jacinto day as a state holiday has been observed for a number of years, with many of the banking and business institutions closing for the day, and the raising of the state emblem. Incidentally, Texas is the only state which has its own emblem and is the only territory which voluntarily joined the American republic.

Texas flags greeted Corsicana citizens when they visited the business district Thursday, and both banks were closed in honor of the occasion. Several special observances of the holiday were carried out in the schools and in the various organizations of the city.

Skillful Pilot Saves Passenger In Air Blizzard

SODA SPRINGS, Calif., April 21.—(P)—Safe on the ground, eight passengers of a tri-motored Transcontinental airplane, which lost a battle with a Sierra blizzard, today praised the skill of the pilot who brought them down uninjured.

The pilot, Harry Hukling, landed the plane in the middle of the Yuba river. A heavy snowstorm had caught the air liner above Granite Peaks and cut off the chance of returning to a landing field.

The plane was badly damaged as it struck the boulders in the river bed. The passengers, protected by safety belts, were only shaken up. The water was shallow.

ACCUSED AGENTS GRANTED BOND BY FEDERAL JUDGE

MEN INDICTED FOR MURDER STORE OWNER GRANTED $17,500 BAIL EACH

SAN ANGELO, April 21.—(P)—Bonds of $17,500 each were set in federal court today for N. D. Heaton and L. C. Smith, federal prohibition agents charged with killing Marion McGlothlin and wounding his wife in a shooting at the McGlothlin store near Irving the night of April 8.

The agents were allowed bond of $15,000 each on the charges of murder for the killing of McGlothlin and $2500 each for the wounding of Mrs. McGlothlin.

SAN ANGELO, April 21.—(P)—Bond hearings were held in federal court here today for L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton, federal prohibition agents charged with the murder and assault to murder in connection with a shooting at a country store near Irving the night of April 8.

District Attorney William McCraw of Dallas county opposed the granting of bond.

The principal witness called by District Attorney McCraw was L. H. Cox of Tarrant county, a man who acknowledged he was a bootlegger and had at one time been convicted of operating a still.

Cox told how "Buddy" Hoard, a man to whom he had sold liquor before, came to his home the night of the shooting and asked to buy 20 gallons of liquor.

Cox said he told Hoard he was out of liquor, but would try to get some. Cox testified Hoard was "plenty well lit."

Hoard asked for some coffee but was told there was none in the house. Cox said he then took down a half-pint of liquor from the

Texas Supreme Court Rules Against Love's Attempt Nullify Test

AUSTIN, April 21.—(P)—The Texas supreme court held today that the state democratic executive committee acted within its rights in prescribing a party fealty pledge for participants in the May 7 precinct presidential conventions.

Thomas B. Greenwood, associate justice, who wrote the court's opinion, said that "with regard to the state committee's power to exact this pledge the statutes are by no means silent."

"The statutes do not deny the power but plainly recognize and confer same," the opinion read.

The case came to the court of last resort on such matters in the form of a certified question from the Fifth Court of Civil Appeals at Dallas.

Former State Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, acting on invitation of the official board of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Texas, sought a mandamus to compel the Dallas county district court to compel the party manager to permit qualified voters to participate in the precinct and county presidential conventions without the necessity of taking a pledge prescribed at a meeting of the party executive committee in Fort Worth, March 9.

The district court dismissed the application for writ of mandamus on grounds there was no statute to prevent the party from exacting a pledge of participants in conventions. The question then was certified to the supreme court to facilitate an early determination of the issue.

The committee's power to require a pledge was contested on the ground that the committee possessed no authority to exact the conventions of its party not granted by statute, and that the statutes of Texas do not grant but negative, the committee's power to exact such a pledge.

Pledge Prescribed.

The pledge prescribed by the party managers is as follows:

"I hereby pledge myself to support the nominees of the democratic party for president and vice president of the United States, by voting for the democratic electors of the State of Texas."

Those who challenged the party's right to prescribe that fealty promise contended that it would bind convention participants to vote for the party nominees even before they knew the identity of the nominees or the principles advocated by the party.

The W. C. T. U. leaders had announced they would work for selection of delegates to the state presidential convention, to be held in Houston, May 24, who would send a delegation to the Chicago national convention pledged only to vote for nominees who were opposed to repeal or modification of the Eighteenth amendment.

"We do not think it consistent with the history and usage of parties in this state nor with the course of our legislation to regard the respective parties or the state executive committees as denied all power over the party membership, conventions and primaries save where such power may be found to have been expressly delegated by statute," the court's opinion said.

Committee Have Power.

"On the contrary, the statutes recognize party organizations including the state committees, as the repositories of party power, which the legislature has sought to control or regulate only so far as was deemed necessary for important governmental ends, such as purity of the ballot and integrity in the ascertainment and fulfillment of the party will as declared by its membership."

"Without either statutory sanction or approval," the court said, "the committee's action is valid."

ANNIVERSARY OF BATTLE THAT WON FREEDOM OBSERVED

WHOLE OF GREAT STATE PAYS GRATEFUL TRIBUTE GALLANT BAND TEXANS

(By The Associated Press.)

The memory of the men who fought on the battlefield of San Jacinto to win independence from Mexico 96 years ago was honored throughout Texas today.

In accordance with annual custom, ceremonies were arranged at the site of the battle, where a handful of Texans broke the power of General Santa Anna.

T. H. McGregor of Austin was designated the principal speaker at ceremonies today on the battleground, 20 miles from Houston.

At San Antonio, 35,000 school children, and Governor R. S. Sterling, gathered flowers to lay at the door of the Alamo. Their action was a tribute to the men who died within the walls of the stone church and whose death the battle of San Jacinto avenged.

On Concepcion battlefield a monument was unveiled to the memory of Richard Andrews, first Texan to die in the war for independence. Daughters of the Republic of Texas were sponsors.

Over the state, banks were closed and schools were dismissed. Patriotic programs were general, with state government officials as leaders.

The battle of San Jacinto, while only about 15 minutes in duration, was one of the most decisive in the history of North America. Coming at a time when the fortunes of the Texans, fighting for independence from the Republic of Mexico, were at a very low ebb, it resulted in withdrawal of Mexican troops from Texas and establishment of the Republic of Texas, which was maintained until it entered the American union.

It was estimated eight Texans were killed in the fight and 26 were wounded, while the Mexicans lost 630 killed, 208 wounded and 730 taken prisoners, the latter including General Santa Anna himself.

The first San Jacinto Day celebration was held the year after the battle at the capital of the Republic of Texas, Austin. Harrisburg, which had been named Houston in honor of General Sam Houston, who commanded the Texans in the battle.

the decline in costs of the things the wage earner has to buy, the wages and salaries the past two years?

The National Industrial conference board has issued a preliminary report on a questionnaire analysis of 1500 companies, representing, the board believes a cross-section of American business.

The returns show that about four out of five companies have reduced salaries and wage rates. An unweighted average of the amount of reduction indicates executives had had their compensation cut on the average about 20 per cent. Routine salaries have shown an average reduction of about 15 per cent and wage rates about 13 per cent.

The companies questioned employed about 2,160,000 during 1929. During 1930 and 1931 they cut this employment 26 per cent.

SECRETARY MILLS OPPOSES CUT FOR HIS DEPARTMENT NOT BUSINESSLIKE, SAYS TREASURY HEAD, AS SLASH IS PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—A 10 per cent cut in appropriations for the treasury department was opposed today by Secretary Mills on the ground that such a procedure is "not businesslike," and may mean the loss of his position.

Letter to Chairman Oddie of the senate subcommittee in charge of the treasury department appropriation bill as house economy committee renewed its efforts to complete a program by which $200,000,000 can be saved next year in government expenditures. The treasury department head recommended enactment of President Hoover's proposal for a five-day week for per diem employees and of a month's furlough without pay for employees on an annual basis.

Without provision for the furlough plan, Mills added, the alternative is a shocking one. He said it would mean "upwards of 6,000 employees," nearly 80 per cent of whom are in the treasury department, would be turned out onto the streets by the government of the United States.

Estimating the 10 per cent cut would result in a saving of $14,000,000 for the treasury department, Mills said the Hoover program promises a greater reduction "without impairment of government efficiency and without the intolerable hardship of the dismissal would inflict on thousands of American families."

If the 10 per cent appropriation cut is adopted, the treasury secretary's economy committee would be applied to employees of the internal revenue bureau. He said the salary and expenses of each agent average $3,716 a year while in the field, and each one recommended additional taxes amounting to $105,000.

Later, Chairman McDuffie announced the economy committee planned to submit an omnibus revision bill to the house Wednesday.

The Alabama Democrat said he would seek a special rule to have the economy measure placed on the legislative supply bill that provides for salaries of members of congress.

Should the house fail to adopt a rule limiting consideration of the omnibus bill, which embodies much of President Hoover's economy program, the measure will be thrown wide open for amendments.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—The house rivers and harbors committee today voted to ask the army engineers if improvement of the Sabine river in Louisiana and Texas still is feasible.

In 1914 the engineers submitted a favorable report on the project, but an appropriation was never authorized. The committee decided before agreeing to authorize the money for the work that it should determine whether changed conditions would affect the feasibility of the project.

Bill Is Approved.
WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—The house today approved the Goldborough bill directing the federal reserve board to increase and stabilize wholesale commodity prices.

An amendment was inserted on motion of Representative Stevenson (D., S. C.) fixing as the proper level the average of prices from 1921 to 1929.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, has approved the measure which was reported favorably without a record vote.

The principal ways in which the board would be able to stabilize commodity prices, committee members said, would be through the purchase or sale of government securities and raising or lowering discount rates.

The board already is purchasing government securities at a rate of about $100,000,000 a week in an effort to increase the volume of credit and stop deflation.

The board told the committee it believed the board had about reached the point in its effort to improve conditions where it could "now hold the line."

tion or prohibition, the party must have the right to adopt reasonable regulations for the enforcement of such obligations to the party from its members as necessarily arises from the nature and purpose of party government.

The pledge here attacked requires nothing further than that those who would participate in the precinct of county democratic conventions in May should express a present intention to support the party nominees for president and vice president by voting for the party's candidates for electors. More than ten years ago, the supreme court declared that every participant in a party convention or primary was obligated to support the party's nominees, even though such support was not expressly pledged or promised.

Ballot Pledge.
Referring to the statutory article 3096 pledge, "I am a democrat and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary," printed at the top of all state primary ballots containing names of candidates for nomination to the various offices, the court quoted its holding in the case of Westerman vs. Mims, as follows:

"For many years such a test was required in party primaries while under no statutory regulation. The object of the test, when so required by party managers, was simply to determine the voter's qualifications to have a part in choosing the candidates of the party or in dictating its policies. It is not believed that the legislature can in reason be said to have had a different object in the enactment of article 3096. The purpose of the legislature was the same as the pre-existing purpose of the party managers, and that was to exclude from party action all persons save those holding a present party allegiance and having a bona fide present intention to support the party nominees."

Obligation Is Moral.
"In our opinion, a voter can not take part in a primary or convention of a party, to name party nominees, without assuming an obligation binding on the voter's honor and conscience. Such obligation inheres in the very nature of his act, entirely regardless of any expressed pledge, and entirely regardless of the requirements of any statute."

"Being unenforceable through the courts, the obligation is a moral obligation."

The court said it was "forced to conclude that it would not be beyond the power of the party through a customary agency such as its state executive committee to adopt regulations designed merely to enforce an obligation arising from the very act of a voter in participating in party control and party action, though the statutes were silent on the subject."

"With regard to the state committee's power to exact this pledge the statutes are by no means silent," Justice Greenwood's opinion stated. "The statutes do not deny the power but plainly recognize and confer same. Instead of inviting all qualified voters into all party conventions, the penal code makes it a crime for any voter to vote at a political party after having voted on the same day in a convention of an opposing party."

Votes Are Defined.
"Furthermore, the statute expressly regulating the presidential precinct conventions, instead of providing that such conventions shall consist of all qualified voters, defines those entitled to participate therein as the voters of the particular party holding the convention."

Quoting article 3167, Complete Texas Statutes 1928, the court observed:

"If article 3167 of the civil statutes and article 240 of the penal code were the sole statutes on the subject, we would have no difficulty in upholding any reasonable party regulation for making effective the legislative intent to confine the membership of the convention of a party to persons willing to affirm a present, bona fide purpose to support the nominees of such party. Were we in doubt on this point the doubt would be removed by the express terms of article 3107 of the Complete Texas Statutes, that: 'Every political party in this state through its state executive committee shall have the power to prescribe the qualifications of its members and shall in its own way determine who shall be qualified to vote or otherwise participate in such political party,' with certain provisions not claimed to relate to the certified question. We are bound to give effect to a grant of power to the state executive committee of a party to determine who shall participate in the acts of the party otherwise than by voting in a primary, when the legislature grants the power in language too plain to admit of controversy and when the determination of the committee conflicts with not other statutory requirement or prohibition, especially when the committee's determination makes effectual the public policy of the state as revealed in its statutes."

Refers to Old Case.
Referring to its holding in the case of Love vs. Wilcox, in which the court held that the state democratic executive could not bar former Senator Love as candidate for the party's nomination for governor in the 1930 state primaries, because he openly refused to support the party's 1928 presidential nominee, the court said its decision in that case "gave effect to the legislative intent by vacating action of the state committee violative of express and valid statutes," adding that its answer to the certified question as to right of an executive committee to promulgate its fealty pledge "likewise gives effect to the legislative intent in upholding action of the state committee in entire accord with the governing

"Curiosity Flight."

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—(P)—The flight of a woman in a red monoplane from the municipal airport here to Hopewell, N. J., was termed a "curiosity hop" by the Kansas City Star.

Identifying the passenger as Mrs. Elizabeth Faubion, wife of a machinist, the Star says she told Walter C. Taber, owner of the plane:

"I just wanted to see the Lindbergh home."

The woman refused to comment on the kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., upon her return here yesterday. At her home, Mrs. Faubion denied she made the flight.

Otto Ferguson, the pilot, talked readily. He said he had paid all personal expenses of the trip since it developed at an overnight stop in Pittsburgh she had "only a nickel" left after paying her savings of $325 for use of the plane.

CHICAGO, April 21.—(P)—Farm women over the country have taken a tip from stock brokers. They're selling on the curb—only it isn't the same kind of curb.

Women in rural districts in increasing numbers are doing their bit to keep the farm wheels turning by going into market themselves with surplus products, home made preserves, canned foodstuffs, baking and handicraft—even to bartering with city housewives from the family automobile, parked at the curb.

This is sponsored and encouraged by the women's division of the American Farm Bureau Federation and a survey of results announced by Miss Laura Pfeiffer, service director, showed that farm bureau women in Illinois, Tennessee and Alabama were especially active in marketing.

Through co-operative selling, Illinois farm women made a gross sale of $109,000 in 1931 in ten counties, according to a report made by Mrs. Henry J. Mies, president of the Illinois Home Bureau Federation. It was estimated that $95,000 was net profit.

In Illinois the markets are of three types: the booth system, in which each contributor has a space in which she sells her produce; the pool system in which contributors assigned to do so; and third, the food shop or tea room.

Curb markets have been established in 28 Alabama towns and have answered a question not new with farm women. How to turn surplus products into cash.

Attempts are being made by the federation to get the women to develop an all-year market by adding to seasonal foodstuffs such things as candles, cakes, salt rising, nut and corn light breads, individual cheese pies, lamp shades, block printed fancy work.

The bill Hines was testifying on also calls for dismissal of William Wolff Smith, general counsel of the veterans' bureau.

Hines was asked if he thought he could get a better lawyer for the $9,000 a year the bureau is paying Smith.

The administrator replied he felt he could now that business conditions had made many good men available.

He added in response to other questions that he was not entirely satisfied with the result Smith was getting in insurance cases but that in the past he had felt it would be hard to get a competent man to take the post.

In view of the fact that Smith has been constantly under fire, he said he felt the counsel should have "fair play."

Dawes Issues Warning.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Charles G. Dawes today warned the house ways and means committee that payment of the soldiers' bonus in new currency would have a disastrous effect on the country's monetary and credit system.

The head of the reconstruction corporation related that his organization had loaned $243,248,000 to 1,520 banks up to April 1 and said the general withdrawal of bank deposits in the United States had stopped.

He said 23 per cent of the loans was to banks in towns of less than 10,000 and 68 per cent in towns of less than 100,000.

buffet and gave it to Hoard, who consumed part of it.

He said Hoard became ill and staggered out on the front porch to recuperate.

Cox said Hoard drove up to his house in a car containing two other men, but they did not come in the house. Hoard told Cox they had been gambling and drinking all day and did not feel like coming in, Cox said.

Cox said he became suspicious of the car and the men in it. He said he wanted to get them away from his place, so he told them to meet him down at the "overhead" bridge, which was just a short distance from the country store operated by Marion McGlothlin and wife.

Mrs. Cox went with him for protection. Cox testified he went to his brother's house to talk to him about the men, then drove to the store. As he drove up, there was a car parked beyond the filling station. When he stopped, Hoard came to meet him. He said he told Hoard he could not get any whiskey.

Under Arrest

Cox said he and Hoard went to the store, followed by Mrs. Cox and the two other men, who he said he had since learned were Smith and Hoaton. He said one of the men took him by the arm and said, "You are under arrest."

Cox related how they took his purse from him. He said they later gave him his money back. He said Mrs. Cox remarked that they should show a search warrant or their badges of authority, but that neither of the officers paid any attention to her.

He thought Smith was the officer who said to Mr. and Mrs. McGlothlin, "You're going along, too."

McGlothlin, he said, asked what they had done. One of the agents allegedly said, "It don't matter a damn, you're going along."

Mrs. Cox had brought a gun with her from the car, Cox said. At this juncture she attempted to draw it, but one of the agents took it away from her. Mrs. McGlothlin was behind the counter.

SAN ANGELO, April 21.—(P)—Two federal prohibition agents, L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton, were here today in an effort to obtain a writ of habeas corpus which would free them on bond.

They were held without bond by state authorities last week after having been indicted on charges of murder and assault to murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Marion McGlothlin, a grocer and filling station proprietor near Dallas.

The agents came here by automobile from Dallas, where they had been released to federal officers, and spent the night at a private residence in custody of a deputy United States marshal.

Before his departure from Dallas, set for 5 a. m., District Attorney William McCraw, who filed the charges against the agents and in a statement said McGlothlin had been "ruthlessly murdered," said the state would be "well represented" in the hearing here on the writ of habeas corpus.

The hearing was arranged in San Angelo because Federal Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas, from whom it had been planned to seek the writ, left Dallas last week for San Angelo before the prohibition agents had prepared their application.

McGlothlin was fatally wounded and his wife was wounded in the hand after the agents had sought to buy liquor from another man and had arranged to meet the latter at the McGlothlin place of business.

NAVARRO COUNTY VOTERS URGED TO SUPPORT GARNER

JUDGE HARDY EXPRESSES HOPE FOR PRECINCT ENDORSEMENT FOR TEXAN

To the Sun and Light:
We are to have our precinct primary conventions two weeks from next Saturday, that is, on May 7. These precinct conventions will select delegates to our county conventions and our county conventions will send delegates to the state convention, and the state convention will send delegates from Texas to the national Democratic convention.
I write this just to express the hope that in every precinct convention, a resolution will be offered and passed without a dissenting vote instructing the Texas delegates to the national convention to vote for Hon. John Garner of Uvalde for the nomination as Democratic candidate for president in the coming November election; and to instruct them to use every honorable means to secure his nomination. I believe the people of Navarro county can and will trust me when I tell them that Texas has no worthier son nor any other son in its broad area than John Garner.
For 16 years I worked by his side in congress, and I know him. He is of the rugged type, fearless, brave, able. He knows our common people; he is one of them, and always has been and always will be true to their interests.
In these troubled times it is no small thing to say of a man that he is big enough to take the helm and guide our nation through the present driving storm. But knowing him as I do, I say without hesitation, there is no man in public life today to whose guiding hand I would sooner trust our nation's honor and our people's welfare.
John Garner is big enough and

JULIAN C. HYER
Fort Worth

Julian C. Hyer, Fort Worth lawyer and former state senator, has announced his candidacy for congressman-at-large, Place No. 3, subject to the action of the democratic primary.

The candidate has been practicing law in Fort Worth since his return from the World War. He enlisted as a private in Texas Ambulance company No. 1 at Waco, and later served with the 11th Trench Mortar Battery in France. He is active in legion circles and is a member and former post-commander of Bathwell-Kane Post, Forty and Eight, and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

While working in the national capital under Senator Benjamin Tillman of Carolina, he became desirous of becoming a member of congress. He is active in civic circles and at present is head of Lions International.

"I shall not go to Washington bound or pledged to any group or class, organization or interest, nor will I pledge my vote for or against any measure to secure individual or collective backing. I shall attempt to represent all of the people of this great state equally and fairly," is a portion of his platform issued with his announcement.

It is enough to be president in this day and time. Moreover, he has been in congress 30 years, and every year he has grown in stature and in fame and today there is no member of congress more widely and favorably known than Mr. Garner.

POWELL TEACHER IS GIVEN SCHOLARSHIP FOR EXCELLENT WORK

Miss Fay Bunch, who has been teaching at Pilot Point this year, has been honored by receiving a scholarship at S. M. U.

Miss Bunch received her B. A. at Teachers' College at Denton last year, having completed her four years of work in three years. Upon completion of her Liberal Arts course, she taught in the college during the summer term.

She has been selected by S. M. U. for this honor because of outstanding work during her college course. A superior student in class room work she was honored by election to a national honorary literary fraternity.

As a member of the T. C. debating team, she won individual honors over contestants in five states, and shared with her fellow debaters the honor of being a member of the best girls' team competing in a debate tournament last year at Arkadelphia, Ark. She is a member of a national honorary debating fraternity also. This spring she was honored by being placed in charge of the debating teams in the interscholastic contest at Denton.

Teachers' College students and faculty members honored her last year by voting her the best all-around student in the school, for which honor she was given special mention in the college annual. Miss Bunch plans to take advantage of this scholarship at S. M. U. by attending at University during the coming year. It is said that for her post-graduate work she will specialize in Latin and law.

The above, taken from the Denton Record-Chronicle, will be read with much interest in Navarro county, Miss Bunch being a native of the Powell community, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bunch, long-time and well known residents of Powell. Miss Bunch has many relatives and friends in this county who will rejoice with her in the distinct honor that she has received.

Theft Charges Are Filed Against Oil Operator at Kilgore

KILGORE, April 21.—(P)—R. B. Whittle of Whittle and Kavanaugh, independent oil operators, faced charges of theft today in connection with production from the firm's oil well near Kilgore. The charges were filed at Longview after military authorities gave the county attorney evidence purporting to show between 5,000 and 6,000 barrels of oil were produced from the well.

Three employees of the firm also were charged.

NEGRO SOUGHT IN KILLING OF WHITE MAN SURRENDERED

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—(P)—The negro who ran amuck at the Bonnet Carré spillway, killing a white man and wounding 10 others, walked into police headquarters here this morning and surrendered.

He told police he was the negro wanted for the shooting and was tired of dodging and wished to surrender. He blamed a negro by the name of "Sie" for the trouble, saying the other negro would come to his house in the daytime to see his wife while he was away at work.

The negro had been sought by a posse with bloodhounds in the swamps around La Branch, 30 miles above New Orleans, since Sunday night when he opened fire on John Haney and George Dunkle at work on a drag line machine. He killed Haney and wounded Dunkle and later shot another white man and wounded eight negroes by firing into the group with an automatic shotgun and two revolvers.

He said he had walked to New Orleans on the edge of the swamps and had heard the bay of hounds on his trail. He was known as "William Wheeler" and "Jared Robinsin."

CORSICANA, TEX., APR. 22, 1932.

NEARER THE CENTEN-NIAL.

In a recent issue of the Texas Weekly, Peter Molyneux, editor, the proposed Texas Centennial was discussed as follows:

Another April is upon us, the eighth since the proposal was made by Theodore H. Price that Texas should celebrate the centennial of its independence in a fashion in keeping with the epoch-making character of the events which brought it about. In four years more we shall reach the one hundredth anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto. When Mr. Price made the suggestion it was taken up with enthusiasm and it was generally said that surely we could arrange for a fitting celebration in twelve years. Indeed, some of us suggested at the time that the whole colonial period should be commemorated, and that even in 1924 we already were in the midst of a centennial period, since Stephen Austin's colonization of Texas began in 1821. Why, we asked, wait until 1936?

"Well, eight of the twelve years have passed, and we are very little nearer definite plans for a centennial celebration than we were then. Some progress has been made, however. For one thing, the last regular session of the Legislature submitted to the people, to be voted on next November, a proposed amendment to the State Constitution authorizing the Legislature to make appropriations for such a celebration. The provisions of that proposed amendment are simple and understandable. They are (1) that the centennial celebration shall be authorized to be held at such time, place, and in such manner as may be designated by the Legislature of Texas, and (2) that the Legislature be authorized to make appropriation for its support and maintenance, provided that this authorization shall not be construed as empowering the Legislature to make appropriations for 'any other exposition or celebration of any kind or character.'

"This proposal will be voted on at the general election in November, and the regular session of the Legislature to be held in January, 1933, will be the earliest at which any action under its provisions may be taken. That will leave only three years in which to prepare the celebration, even if suitable action is taken without delay.

"It is certain that more widespread and concrete sentiment in favor of the centennial celebration will have to develop if anything of genuine consequence is to come of all the talk of the past eight years. As a matter of course, the proposed amendment should be adopted by the people. And then the people of the State must be aroused to a full understanding of the importance of the project in order that action by the Legislature may be insured. There will be no fitting celebration unless public sentiment is behind it."

JUST FOLKS

PLANT A GARDEN
 If your purse no longer bulges and you've lost your golden treasure,
 If at times you think you're lonely and have hungry grown for pleasure
 Don't sit by your hearth and grumble, don't let mind and spirit harden.
 If it's thrills of joy you wish for, get to work and plant a garden!

If it's drama that you wish for, plant a garden and you'll get it.
 You will know the thrill of battle fighting goes that will beset it.
 If you long for entertainment and joy for pagantry most glowing,
 Plant a garden, and this summer spend your time with green things growing.

If it's comradeship you sigh for, learn the fellowship of daisies.
 You will come to know your neighbor by the blossoms that he raises.
 If you'd get away from boredom and find new delights to look for,
 Learn the joy of budding pansies which you've kept a special nook for.

If you ever think of dying and you fear to wake tomorrow,
 Plant a garden; it will cure you of your melancholic sorrow.
 Once you've learned to know the peonies, petunias and roses,
 You will find that every morning some new happiness discloses.

THE INTERNATIONAL PUZZLE.

There was a sense of general international satisfaction last year when the announcement was made that Germany's favorable trade balance amounted to $706,000,000. "Now," said Germany's creditor neighbors, "Germany will pay us our slice and all will be merrily."

But another year's experience has set the creditors who like German trade to thinking that there may be drawbacks in the conditions which brought about the favorable German balance of trade. For it became apparent that the German people kept their values in exports above those of their imports by a pretty rigid system of restriction upon buying abroad and by intensive stimulus of production. There is this peculiar quality in the relation of a debtor nation to its creditors: The debtor can pay only by selling more than he buys. He can not go in to the markets of those to whom he owes money, sell his goods and buy back an equal amount of the products of his debtor. He must be content to sell and apply what is coming to him as a credit upon what he owes. Silas H. Strawn, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, speaking recently in Berlin, regretted that Germany had fallen from the position of second, to third-best customer of the United States. The people of Germany no longer buy so freely of the goods the people of the United States have to export. It is another of the puzzling phases of disrupted international economic relationships that are a part of the cost of war.

POSTAGE STAMPS AND HAY.

There was a touch of bravado in it and perhaps even remnants of the old pony-express spirit, now often exemplified in the air mail, that the mail must go through at any cost, but the shipment of a ton of hay by parcel post from Durango to Silverton, Col., shows what the postal service can and will do in an emergency.

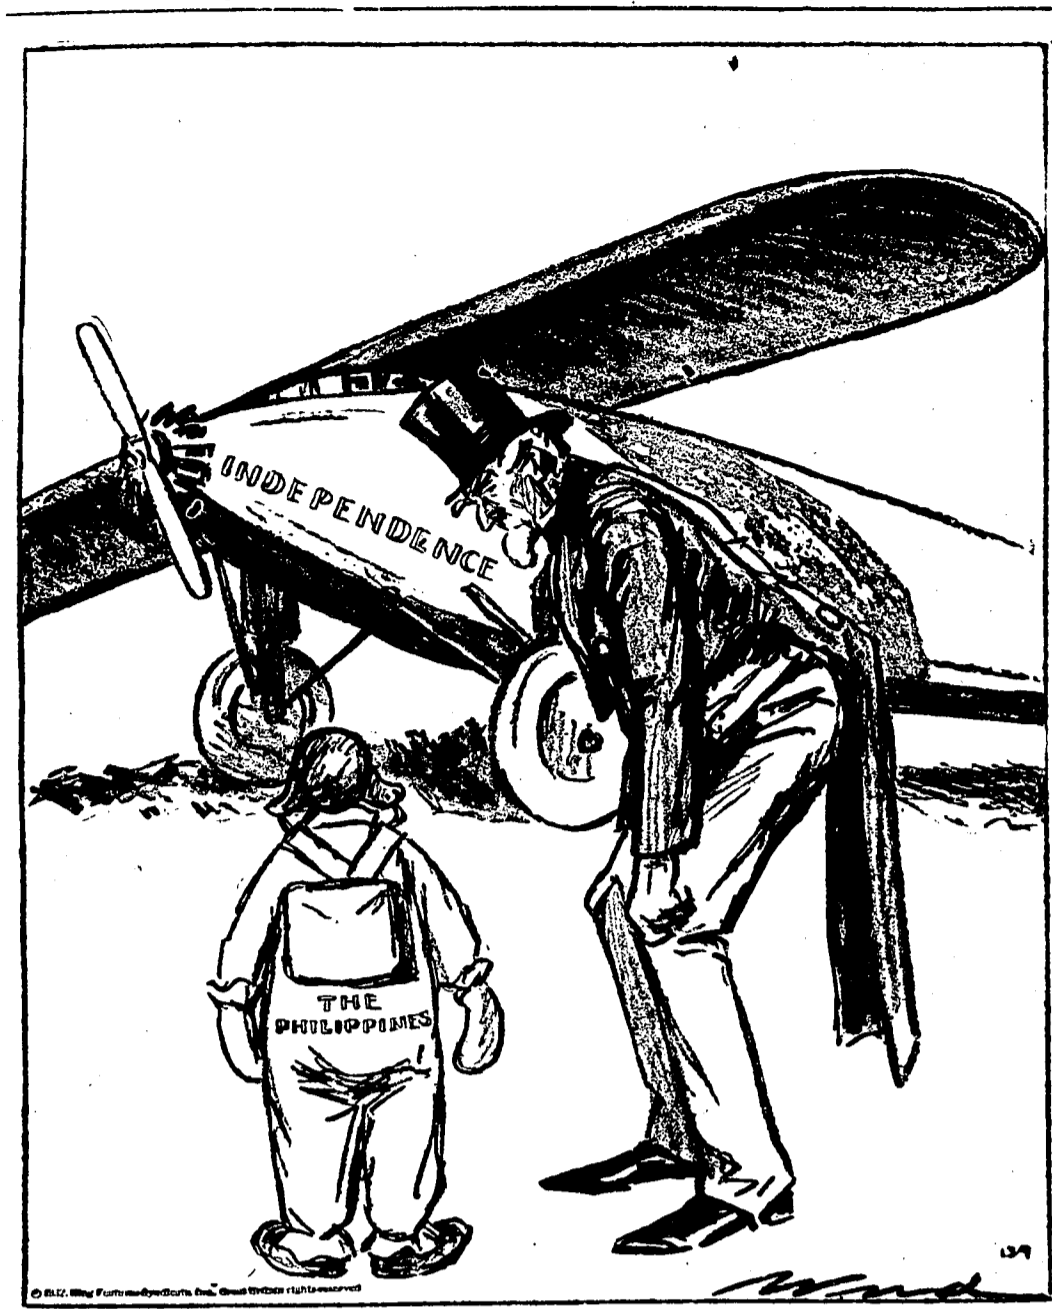

The mail was being carried over the mountain by pack-horse. Dairy cattle in snowbound Silverton needed the feed, so a Durango shipper packed it in small bundles, placed the legal $14 worth of stamps on it and mailed it. And the hay went through by mail on pack mules at a cost to the government of five cents a pound.

So routine has the mail service become that few persons, when they drop a letter or a package in a mail box, realize that the postal department is more than an automatic machine. It takes an incident of this sort—a stunt, if you will—to bring back the personal character of the mails, the individual efforts that go to make up a service which still has as its watchword "The mail must go through."

BRITAIN ON THE UP GRADE

All observers agree that the backbone of adversity and pessimism has been broken in Great Britain. Many reasons are assigned for the change in British sentiment; but while the theorists argue about the weight of various factors in a complicated situation, the fact remains that confidence is returning, and throughout the kingdom a strong and optimistic movement is being felt. Sterling continues to improve, carrying with it the Scandinavian exchanges. Everyone is talking about the good times that are to be.

We in America can not help but rejoice to see this improvement. Anything that helps Great Britain is bound to help us. In the past, England has depended for prosperity chiefly on her commerce—her exports of manufactured goods, and her carrying trade. If she is the first nation to be able to break through the stagnation of the world buying market and get Europe, the Orient and South America to take her goods, she will help us in at least two ways. She will aid in restoring competition, which has been dead, in those markets, since any buying movement is bound to result in comparison between American and British goods. We shall take our competitive chance in the foreign market, and we have always had to take it; and if that market begins to buy, our chances are just as good as England's.

Indeed, it is a general law that trade generates trade, buying stimulates buying. The main thing is the restoration of confidence, of a psychology of optimism, which releases the spirit of man and gives it driving power. Business is international; it therefore makes no difference where this spirit takes hold and makes headway. If the British movement continues it will be good for the world, and it will benefit us.

DEBTS.

There are two sides to every happening and issue, and debt is no exception to the rule. In one direction debt leads to prosperity and plenty but in the opposite direction it arrives at worry and want. It is well to get into debt of the former sort as it is to get out of debt of the latter kind.

In dealing with debt it is necessary to distinguish between mere foolish running into debt and investment between borrowing to buy non-essentials and borrowing for profit by investing the borrowed money in value.

IT PAYS TO YELL

Rep. Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, who was a Washington correspondent before he was elected to congress, has revealed another of the many leaks of government funds, and has pointed out how $111,000 a year can be saved by the abolition of useless jobs.

Mr. Ludlow asked Secretary of the Treasury, Mills to explain to him why, in some of the larger ports of entry, there should be a collector of customs, an appraiser, a comptroller and a surveyor. Secretary Mills replied:

"In the interest of economy and in co-operation with the congress, I see no objection to the elimination of the presidential offices of surveyors and appraisers, except the appraiser at the port of New York." But he insisted that controllers are necessary, as they audit all the acts of the collectors, thus furnishing a double check on all proceedings.

Mr. Ludlow says that in accordance with Secretary Mills' opinion, 15 appraisers with a total salary of $72,200 can be eliminated and seven surveyors who draw $38,800 a year. That would mean the abolition of 22 useless political jobs, 22 pieces of fat patronage for the party in power. It is because these jobs are useless political jobs that they ought to be abolished; and it is for the same reason that unless there is a yell from the taxpayer, they will not be abolished.

property, safe securities, household necessities or business. Debts wisely created pay themselves but the reckless borrower stands to lose all.

None has been oftener forewarned than the foolish borrower. For many centuries the Book of Proverbs has told him "The borrower is servant to the lender." He has heedlessly passed over in Shakespeare that admonition, "Neither a borrower nor a lender be; for loan oft loses both itself and friend, and borrowing dulleth the edge of husbandry." While from the philosophical Ben Franklin is learned, "He that goes a borrowing, goes a sorrowing."

One is not truly in debt who exchanges his loan for its equivalent in something else and preserves the latter until the debt is dissolved, for it is always available for the satisfaction of the importunate creditor. The true debtor is he who dissipates his borrowings before the debt is satisfied.

Women marry at face value.

DAYS OF YOUTH

"We are only young once," you often hear some person remark as an excuse for "hitting the pace."

True, we can be young but once, and the pleasures of youth must be crowded into that space of time.

But how long are we young? Some men are old at 40, while others are still young at 60. It depends upon the pace they hit and the manner in which they hit it.

We can crowd a lot of work and pleasure into youth if we keep our hearts and our minds and our bodies clean, or we can reduce the amount of both and shorten our youth by resorting to reckless dissipation.

Your youth is your own. It will be prolonged or curtailed by your own acts.

Possibly oratory is no longer effective because, as they say, to teach a dog anything you must know more than the dog.

TWO LARGE PECAN TREES ON MANSION GROUNDS "BUDDING"

PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION OF IMPROVING QUALITY OF NATIVE PECANS GIVEN

AUSTIN, April 19.—(Spl.)—A practical demonstration of practical methods of improving the quality of native stock pecan trees through budding with commercial varieties is the aim of the department of agriculture in budding two large pecan trees on the Mansion grounds.

The trees have been topped and sprayed preparatory to the final work in budding late this summer. Having produced only 40 or 50 pounds of nuts so small that around 200 were required to make a pound in past years, the pecan experts of the department predict the trees will bear 150 to 175 pounds of nuts so large that only 40 will weigh a pound after the budding process has been completed.

"I think that on the mansion grounds of Texas there should grow the best of pecans," said Mrs. Sterling. "The trees on the mansion grounds should be ones that will set an example for all Texans to follow, and for that reason I am glad that the department's men are improving this tree, just to show Texans what can be done with Texas native stock pecan trees."

"There are millions of native pecan trees that should be budded with commercial varieties in order that Texans may get the best from their trees," Commissioner McDonald said. "The cost of budding is practically negligible, and the art of grafting so easy to learn that it behooves every young farmer to learn how to bud his trees. The results are of such great value that all hardy native stock pecan trees should be budded with a good commercial variety."

The department of agriculture has men expert in pecan tree budding that will assist in teaching Texas pecan growers how to bud trees.

While the Texas pecan production ranks first among all other states and averages from one-third to one-half of the entire production of the United States, both the quality and quantity of

Corsicanans Attend Family Reunion At Groesbeck Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Foust, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Dill, Miss Maglieni Foust left Sunday morning at 6:30 for Groesbeck to attend a family reunion at the home of Mrs. Foust's mother, Mrs. S. A. Goolsby. A stop was made on the banks of the Navasota river where the party enjoyed an outdoor breakfast.

At 11 o'clock a party of 34 children, grand children and friends gathered in a very pretty shady spot in the woods, some distance from Groesbeck, and spread a very appetizing picnic dinner, this happy reunion being a complement to Mrs. Goolsby as this was her birthday.

After the crowd gathered about the table, the birthday cake was presented Mrs. Goolsby by her granddaughter, Mrs. LeRoy Dill of Baptown. The cake was cut and served by her other granddaughter, Miss Maglieni Foust. The afternoon was devoted to the fun of horseback riding, swimming and baseball by the younger members of the family.

nuts produced could be materially increased with a consequent increase in value to the growers through budding with good commercial varieties, according to the department experts. Last season Texas produced 32,000,000 pounds of pecans while the entire United States produced around 75,000,000 pounds.

LIGHTNING FIRES ESCAPING GAS AT MAGNOLIA REFINERY

No damage resulted from lightning igniting escaping gas from a valve in the gas plant of the Magnolia Petroleum Company's refinery during Monday night's electrical disturbance, W. C. Ralston, plant superintendent, said Tuesday morning.

The fire started shortly before 11 o'clock and all employees were summoned to the refinery immediately by the "big whistle," but the flames were extinguished after about a 30-minute battle, without the necessity of calling for assistance from the Corsicana fire department.

The flames were visible in many parts of town directly after the outbreak of the fire and both the refinery and fire department were deluged with telephone calls asking about the fire, and many people left their homes and drove to the refinery as soon as the big whistle sounded its call to the Magnolia employees.

CARD OF THANKS

Purdon, Texas, April 18, 1932.
 We take this method of thanking our many friends for their kindness and help in our great misfortune of losing our house and contents by fire, trusting none will ever have such misfortune. Thanking each that lent a helping hand. May God's blessings be yours is our prayer.
 Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cox and children.

FARMERS FAILING TAKE ADVANTAGE OF LOAN FACILITIES

DEADLINE FOR FEDERAL FARM LOANS HAS BEEN SET AT APRIL 30TH

While big business institutions of the nation are borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in such large sums as $10,000,000 difficulties are being found daily in getting Texas farmers to take advantage of the available funds for financing their crops in 1932.

Business leaders of the state have agreed that the placing in circulation of some $10,000,000 for farm supplies would be a genuine stimulant to business, and this money is available to Texas farmers, but the records of the office show less than half that sum will be used by the farmers of the state for making crops this year.

With April 30 as the "dead line" or last day for making applications for loans this year, officials of the corporation are anticipating a final rush. They blame the lack of information or misinformation concerning the regulations governing the loans.

In practical effect, the banking community in Navarro county, a committee has been organized, consisting of a merchant, farmer and banker to assist in making loans, and to give information, the loans being passed on to the central committee in Corsicana. The Corsicana Chamber of Commerce is also maintaining a staff for the assistance of farmers in preparing loan applications.

Representatives of the central and community committees Thursday urged that every farmer who had not secured financing and needed it to get in communication with the committee in his banking community or apply to the chamber of commerce at once. Only a little over a week remains for the placing of applications.

LUST AND LAZY LIFE LOT'S CHOICE IN GREAT DECISION *

Parting of Two Emigrant Kinsmen And Its Consequences—How the Younger Man's Spiritual Fibre Deteriorated—Abraham's Harder, Higher Portion.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

One thrill that I get out of Bible reading which few persons can share is the recollection of personal experiences on the scene of the events described. Here in the very earliest chapters of Genesis, which critics say are but vague folklore from the misty and legendary past, I find the narrative of Abraham's wanderings in exact correspondence with the geographical facts as we know them today. I have been everywhere that Abram went, from Ur of the Chaldees through Haran, clear to Bethel and Hebron, and back again. The route is the old, worn, logical highway. And when we come to the incident which constitutes this present Lesson, the story fits the place as a key fits a lock.

Back from his discredited experience in Egypt, Abram and his party found themselves again across the desert of Sinai, and in the South of Canaan. But they did not tarry there; perhaps the temptation of his riches would be too great for the neighboring Arabs. So the huge encampment, with its black goats' hair tents, its camels, its flocks, its herds, slowly craved northward past the Jebel of Salem, until it settled down near Bethel, where Abram had sojourned after his arrival in the Land of Promise.

There stood the altar that he had erected at the first, when he called upon the name of Jehovah. The ashes of his sacrificial fires still darkened the spot. Memory's cords bound the party tenderly to this landmark in their pilgrimage. Looking down the Valley, this camp site, between Bethel and Ai, stands on the edge of the great Judean uplands. It is a singular vantage point. Within sight is a large proportion of Canaan, and the ancient city of Jerusalem, that is now called Jerusalem. Travellers to the Holy Land today will find notable archaeological excavations at Bethel, the city with so long and sacred a Scriptural association.

But Bethel and Ai also look down into the fat, lush, green valley of the Jordan. The windswept heights seem barren and sterile as compared with this fertile and warm and well-watered plain. Self-indulgence must ever view such a prospect with the eye of craving; and Lot found himself looking often that way. As the flocks passed along the heights, the dark green ribbon that marked the Jordan's course was always in view; and the Plain of Jericho and the Dead Sea beckoned constantly to the tropical delights of oranges and bananas and grapes and melons and dates and other pleasant fruits of the kindly earth which the Jericho Plain produces.

Here were two choices for life spread before the eye, literally, by the geographical configuration of the land. The decision revealed character.

Too Close Quarters. Some such choice must soon be made by the two groves in the Hebrew encampment. Their very prosperity crowded the land. There was strife between the herdsmen of Abram and Lot: the same sort of strife that leads to rivalry and raids throughout Arabia today. Rights to wells and to pasturage became a fighting matter. Each night the encampment rang with the recriminations of the tents. An economic condition had arisen, not altogether unlike the present, which called for drastic measures.

Like the wisest of the modern type of business man, Abram got together with Lot and counseled peace. Nothing can be accomplished by trade war, by strikes, lock-outs, and armed guards, that cannot be better effected by councils of peace and reason. So Abram proposed that, as the whole land lay before them, Lot take his choice. If he would go to the left hand, Abram and his followers would go to the right. And vice versa.

This was magnanimous on the part of Abram, whose family position entitled him to make decisions for all. Had Lot been as much of a gentleman as his uncle, he would have turned back the privilege of choice to him.

But Lot was one generation behind Abram in quality, and two generations behind his grandfather, Terah. So, like a spoiled boy taking the best piece of cake at a party, he chose for himself the beautiful and fertile Plain, with its easy life.

Tenting Toward Sodom. Besides its lush pasturage and fertility, which were the ostensible reasons for Lot's choice, the Plain had the decadent cities of which Sodom and Gomorrah were the most notorious. Easy circumstances had beotten an idle, degenerate form of life among the people of the Plain. By the very nature of his selection, Lot showed an affinity for this sort of luxury.

How long he was moving his tent toward Sodom. The clean-living man of the open air, the shepherd with a spiritual tradition and an ancestry; was drifting into the enervating life of corrupt cities. Soon, alas, Lot's immortal identity would not be with the Jehovah-advocate of Abram, but with the rottenness of Sodom and Gomorrah. What a price to pay for self-indulgence! The "easy way" always leads to hard times.

What Price Luxury? All the while that we are studying about Lot we are thinking of our own generation and its choices. The parallel is on the surface. Disaster has come to our day because so many of us have turned our backs upon the character-breeding uplands, and have elected the way of ease, of mindless reward, of escape from all. It is the sudden popularity of the Jordan Plain that has rejuvenated the highway of progress to a wasteland and to panic.

Everybody is pointing a finger of wonder at the crashed fortunes of the past few years. But these are no more tragic spectacles than the more pitiable parts of the wreckage of many fortunes are the poor, starved, spineless, wallowing ones who a few short months ago were the darlings of fortune.

Under such circumstances had so softened the fibre of their spirits that they could not stand up under adversity.

These are the spiritual heirs of Lot, choosers of the easy way, and so drifters into degeneracy of character. It has been my lot, of late, to see more than little of these recently-rich victims of the depression. Some there are who are still wealthy in soul stuff; but most are mere cumberers of the ground, useless and troublous social debris.

The Heritage of the Heights. Abram remained on the heights. And, lo, as soon as he was freed from the distracting and depressing company of Lot, he was given another vision by Jehovah. From the stern uplands which he had accepted as his heritage, he was told to look all around, and behold the land that should be the heritage of his seed forever.

Lot got an easy life down in the Plain, with disaster and shame just ahead of him; but Abram, on the hills, was given a new little deed to the spiritual inheritance for the sake of which he had left Ur and Haran.

GRAIN GROWERS SEEKING LOWER FREIGHT RATES

CHICAGO, April 21.—(F)—Grain growers, fighting for lower rates in West and Southwest areas at a rate hearing before Interstate Commerce commission examiners, today questioned carriers witnesses on the effect of operating efficiency on expenses.

Former Gov. Clyde Reed of Kansas, representing growers of his state, contested for this right in the cross examining of L. C. Fritch, a vice president of the Rock Island lines, who had portrayed a drop in revenues of Western trunk line carriers.

J. A. Brown, a vice president of the Missouri Pacific Lines, told of decreases in revenue for Southwest carriers due to inroads of oil pipe lines, barge and truck systems.

This decrease, Brown contended, would not let the carriers in the Southwest operate under reduced rates on grain and grain products. The Southwest area rates averaged 10 per cent higher than for the Western area. This 10 per cent was eliminated in the commissioner's general revision of rates ordered effective last August 1 and later thrown out by a supreme court for a rehearing.

UNEMPLOYMENT DISORDER NEW YORK, April 21.—(F)—Disorder broke out this afternoon at a demonstration for unemployment relief at city hall when a group of several hundred communists broke through police lines. Police instantly charged the crowds and blackjacks and batons were swung repeatedly on the heads of demonstrators.

PROPERTY OWNERS LOST IN EFFORT TO STOP ROAD CHANGE

AUSTIN, April 21.—(F)—Mrs. W. G. Nairn and other property owners in Lubbock county today lost their suit to prevent the state highway commission from changing the location of highway 53 in Lubbock county.

The supreme court concurred in the action of the lower court in sustaining the general demurrer of the highway commission to the suit. One of the grounds in the demurrer was that the state of Texas was the main party at interest and that the highway commission as the agent for the state had full control over the state highway system and the location of the highways.

The suit was filed after the commission had announced its intention of changing the route of the highway. Mrs. Nairn and others, complaining it was in violation of a former agreement to locate the road. The plaintiffs stated they had gone to considerable expense in removing their fences and making other improvements after the commission had designated the original route of the highway and that these investments would be lost if the route was changed.

As originally designated, the highway intersected highway 9 about one mile northeast of Lubbock and entered the city on highway 9 to Avenue H. The proposed relocation would route the highway into Lubbock over Broadway.

Former Prominent Attorney Is Buried In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, April 21.—(F)—Carlos Bee, 64, former prominent attorney and politician here, who died at a local hospital yesterday, was buried this afternoon, with Bishop W. T. Carpers and the Rev. A. R. McKinstry conducting the services at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

Bee was the son of General Hamilton P. Bee, West Texas commander of headquarters here during the Civil war, and he was a nephew of General Bernard B. Bee, for whom Beeville is named and who headed troops which once met those of Stonewall Jackson in battle.

TEXAS STUDENTS WIN OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 21.—(F)—Students at Texas colleges won all prizes awarded today at the convention of the Oklahoma State Society of Architects.

Fifty-six Oklahoma and Texas students had entered drawings in the competition. The winners, in order, were R. Max Brooks, University of Texas; George W. Alexander, Texas A. and M.; and Charles H. Page, Jr., University of Texas.
